MANY DELEGATES FOR CONVENTION

Hundreds Arrive for Annual State Convention of the Brotherhood of America. Program of the Week.

Members of the Brotherhood of America from all over this state are rapidly arriving to take part in the annual convention to be held here Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week. The first big delegation to arrive reached here shortly after noon bringing one hundred members from Philadelphia. Others will come in rapid succession.

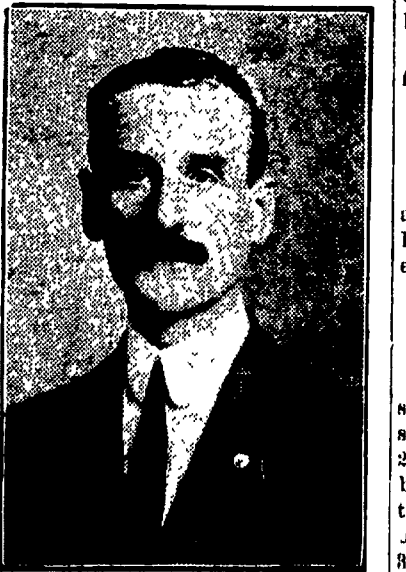

The first session will take place on Tuesday morning when the address of welcome on behalf of the citizens of Gettysburg will be delivered by Robert E. Wible, Esq., borough solicitor. The response will be made by the Grand Chief Washington of Pennsylvania, A. L. Welsh, of Philadelphia. The battlefield trip will be made Tuesday afternoon and on Wednesday the real hard work of the convention will be attended to by the delegates.

The reports of the various officers will be heard and acted upon and a number of new measures will come before the convention for consideration. The peace and harmony which exists throughout the state is shown by the fact that there is only one appeal for benefits to be heard by the convention and that is for only $10.00.

On Thursday the incoming officers will be installed by Supreme Washington, Julius Viebahn, of Houtzdale, assisted by Past Supreme Washington, Frank W. Reeve, of Atlantic City, New Jersey, publisher of The Brotherhood, the official organ of the order. One of the most important features of the session on Thursday will be the selection of a brother on whom will be conferred the degree of Grand Exalted Washington, this degree to be conferred in Washington, D. C., next October for meritorious services rendered to the order. A number of applicants are already in the field soliciting votes for this honor, the highest degree conferred in the order.

Harrisburg and Wilkesbarre are in the field for next year's convention but the former city will likely get it, that being the desire of the incoming Grand Chief Washington, W. S. Reed who hails from the Capitol City.

Lost between Baltimore street and Hunterstown, valuable papers. A deed and draft and surveyor's field notes. Reward. Return to Times office.

ABOUT SENATOR MARTIN

Says the Waynesboro Herald: "Senator Martin is a physical giant standing 6 feet 4 1/2 inches in his stocking feet and probably weighing 250 pounds. There are five brothers beside himself in the family and if they should stand one on top of the other, they would reach to a height of 86 feet 4 1/2 inches."

"The senator says that his youngest brother failed to do his duty and consequently is shorter than the rest. Had he been as tall as the remainder of the boys, their combined height would have been 87 feet."

THE SUMMER'S HOTTEST DAY

Official Thermometer Crawls up Slowly until it almost Touches the Hundred Mark. Closest to it was July First.

Sunday was the hottest day Gettysburg has had this Summer and people in both town and county suffered greatly from the burning rays of the mid-Summer sun.

The official thermometer, kept by Colonel E. B. Cope, registered 97 degrees at maximum, which is one degree higher than at any other time during the Summer. The previous high record was reached July 1 when the mercury crawled up to 96.

Coats were off, fans were in use, and cooling drinks were brought into service all day and far into the evening. People stayed up late knowing that sleep would be impossible. The attendance at church services was seriously affected by the great heat and many people stayed at home in the evening who as a rule are always seen in one or other of the local houses of worship. Many sought relief by going to Round Top or strolling slowly to the edge of town where they kept as cool as possible.

The burning sun keeps on drying up corn and garden truck and many fields present a sorry appearance. Relief is in sight now, heavy showers being promised for the next few days. The weather bureau may have another "flare back" to report, however, and the rain will not be counted on until we see it falling.

ON WESTERN TRIP

The Times is in receipt of the following letter from Samuel E. Bream and brother who are taking a Western trip.

Lafayette, Ind. Aug. 1:
To The Gettysburg Times:

We arrived at 1:30 last night and have had a pleasant trip so far. We came through Ohio by way of Pittsburg, and find quite a good oats crop. It is nearly all cut and on shocks. Corn is looking fairly well. There are few apples and very few trees. They had a good season. Fields are looking nice and green. We came through Indiana thus far at night so that we did not see the country, but the friend with whom we have stopped reports that the season has been plenty wet. Oats are yielding from 10 to 60 bushels per acre; wheat 18 to 25, about one fourth crop of apples, peach crop very good. Please send me a copy of The Times each day of next week as it will be lonely without this news after being used to having it each day.

Yours respectfully,
Samuel Bream and Brother.

MANY PATIENTS AT DISPENSARY

Adams County people Suffering from Tuberculosis Given Free Treatment at State Dispensary on Baltimore street.

The free tuberculosis dispensary in the Brinkerhoff Building on Baltimore street, established by the state and in charge of Dr. J. R. Dickson, has done a great deal of good for sufferers from consumption in Adams County since May 1908 when it was established.

In that time a large number of patients have applied for medical aid and of this number 19 have been placed on the rolls of the dispensary. Some were refused aid because their financial condition allowed them to help themselves while examination showed others not to be afflicted with tuberculosis. Of the nineteen three have died and eight now get regular treatment.

The number who received help at Gettysburg is far below that in most other counties showing that the county is a healthful place. Adams County's dispensary stands in the lowest third of the dispensaries of the state in point of number of patients treated. This number would be larger here except for the fact that some months ago a similar dispensary was established in Hanover and to this institution go all the indigent sufferers from Littlestown, McSherrystown, New Oxford, East Berlin, Abbottstown and other places in the lower end. There is more of the disease there than in the other three fourths of the county.

Where deemed best the state furnishes milk and eggs in addition to medical treatment to the sufferers but up to this time only two of the patients at the local dispensary have accepted this form of help. The deaths which occurred were all in cases where the disease was far advanced when the patient was admitted. By far the greatest good is accomplished when tuberculosis sufferers apply for treatment while the disease is in its incipency.

DRANK GASOLINE

A very distressing accident, and one that almost resulted in the loss of a human life occurred at Boiling Springs Friday afternoon about three o'clock. The two and a half year old son of Mr. and Mrs. George Sipe got hold of a bottle containing about a pint of gasoline, which was on a chair. The child drank considerable of it and became deathly sick. He was hastily taken to the office of Dr. Lefevre, who used the stomach pump, and administered powerful emetic. The child was unconscious, and respiration was apparently gone. By artificial respiration, Dr. Lefevre brought the child back to consciousness, after the hardest kind of work from three until seven o'clock. The lot was slightly delirious, but full recovery is expected. It was a very close call.

SUCCESSFUL

Hunterstown, Aug. 9.—The Straban Grange held a very successful meeting on Saturday afternoon in the Conewago Presbyterian church grove. The meeting was very largely attended by people from all parts of the county. The main address was made by State Master William T. Crensy. The New Oxford Band was present and the day was quite successful.

PISTOL BATTLE WITH BURGLAR

Wounded Desperado Escaped Over Mountains.

CAUGHT AT BROTHER'S HOUSE

Terrorized Hamlet and Escaped Capture After Pistol Duel—Nearly Dead From Loss of Blood When He Appeared at Brother's House.

Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 9. — Alfred Kinard, a notorious character of Perry county, lies seriously wounded in the Harrisburg hospital as the result of a desperate battle in a small mountain settlement north of this city, where he attempted to rob the store of Lewis Myers.

Holding up the entire hamlet at the point of his revolver, Kinard entered the store, but was interrupted by Oscar Hiesley, who procured a revolver and opened fire on the desperado. Kinard fell after a half dozen shots had been exchanged, but was up and away into the thick underbrush before his pursuers could capture him. He was badly wounded in the left thigh, but managed to hide himself until the chase had been abandoned and then crawled over the mountain and through the woods to the home of his brother, Amos Kinard, several miles distant in Cumberland county.

Bleeding and almost unconscious when he reached there, he begged his brother to take him in and hide him. The brother did take him in, but immediately sent for an officer. There is a reward of $75 for the arrest of Kinard, and the brother will get the money. Kinard was hurried to the Harrisburg hospital, where he is expected to die of loss of blood. For years he has been noted for his daring lawlessness and is wanted for assaulting officers and the law for burglary and horse stealing. Heretofore he has always managed to get away by hiding in the mountains.

COLLIERS WEEKLY SUED FOR DAMAGES

Buffalo, N. Y., Aug. 9.—Papers were filed here today with the county clerk by attorneys for William J. Connors, chairman of the Democratic state committee, in a suit against the owners of Collier's Weekly for $100,000 damages because of an article published in the weekly July 11, 1908. The complaint contains the entire article complained of, in which Mr. Connors alleges, he is charged with various crimes, including assault, secret murder, riot and conspiracy.

John T. Penlon, an attorney of New York city, has filed an answer for Colliers, in which he denies there was any intention to bring the plaintiff into disgrace or that he has been injured. The proprietors of Colliers admit the publication of the article, but they deny malice or that Mr. Connors has been injured by the article, and they say they have no information sufficient to form a belief as to Mr. Connors standing for integrity.

MULES FOR FARM WORK.

Why a Breeder Considers Them More Desirable Than Horses.

All mules are good mules if properly treated, says a Tennessee breeder. And there is no necessity that any limitations of climate or latitude be placed upon them. When owned and managed by unprejudiced people on northern farms they are as satisfactory in that section as in Tennessee, Missouri or Texas.

Of course where large implements are used and weight is an important factor in a team small mules will not serve. But on the sugar plantations of the south mules sixteen to eighteen hands are common, and, though they have less weight than the draft breeds of horses of the same height, they draw as big a plow and break as much land in a day as most of the heavy horse teams.

As to the cost of keeping, I am sure that they are at least 25 per cent less expensive. And in the matter of use on southern farms or any others, where careless management may be detrimental, mules are far more desirable than horses.

Of course the efficiency of a team of mules in accomplishing farm work depends on the same factors as in the horse teams—that is, quick movement.

The average plow mule may be slower than an average plow horse, but there is no need that it should be so. The training is what determines that in most cases, and from my own experience I should say that it is as easy to have a quick stepping mule team as a horse team. If a cotton or sugar planter buys young mules and leaves their breaking to negro farm hands and along with slow, old horses or mules he will be sure to have a very slow walking team.

I once had a four mule team that hitched to a wagon or two plows did as much work as any team in the vicinity. I required that they were to be well trotted, and they were as safe to use, accomplished as much work of any kind as the best horse team and cost a fourth less to feed. And another important point—when I parted with the mules at twelve or thirteen years old they seemed to be really in their prime. It is seldom that horses prove as durable.

Protecting Horses From Flies. To keep flies from horses take two or three small handfuls of green walnut leaves, cover them with two or three quarts of soft cold water. Let this stand overnight and pour the whole next morning into a kettle. Allow it to boil about fifteen minutes. When cold it will be ready to use. Nothing more is necessary than to saturate a sponge before starting out with the team from the stable and with the liquid go over those parts which are most affected.—Farm Journal.

THE VETERINARY

The following is an old fashioned remedy for caked udder: Rub soft soap on the affected part until a lather is formed. Repeat several times or until the hardness disappears.

Destroying Cattle Ticks. Where ticks are found on cattle a sure way to get rid of them is to go over the cattle with a sponge well moistened with crude petroleum. Repeat when necessary until all ticks are destroyed.

Potatoes For Worms. If horses or colts have worms try feeding them raw potatoes thinly sliced. You will probably have to mix the potatoes in with the grain at first to get the horses to eat them. A few raw potatoes each week are good for a horse at any time.

Caring For Nail Wounds. When a nail picks up a nail be sure to cut out a tunnel shaped cavity as deep as the wound and make it bleed all if possibly will. Then use a wash of water that is strongly scented with carbolic acid several times and keep the foot packed with oakum.

Cause of Reddish Milk. Bloody or reddish milk may be caused by blows on the udder or by inflammation from other causes and is not uncommon in summer, when a sudden accession of rice food may induce local congestion, with increased flow of milk. Law says, "If the discoloring of milk is caused by congestion a saline laxative, followed with niter, a restricted diet and frequent bathing of the udder with very cold water is useful."—Dr. Michener in Farm Journal.

Nervous Prostration

"I suffered so with Nervous Prostration that I thought there was no use trying to get well. A friend recommended Dr. Miles' Nervine, and although skeptical at first, I soon found myself recovering, and am to-day well."

MRS. D. L. JONES,
8800 Broadway, Cleveland, O.

Much sickness is of nervous origin. It's the nerves that make the heart force the blood through the veins, the lungs take in oxygen, the stomach digest food, the liver secrete bile and the kidneys filter the blood. If any of these organs are weak, it is the fault of the nerves through which they get their strength. Dr. Miles' Nervine is a specific for the nerves. It soothes the irritation and assists in the generation of nerve force. Therefore you can hardly miss it if you take Dr. Miles' Nervine when sick. Get a bottle from your druggist. Take it all according to directions, and if it does not benefit he will return your money.

TAFT WILL GIVE OUT CENSUS JOBS

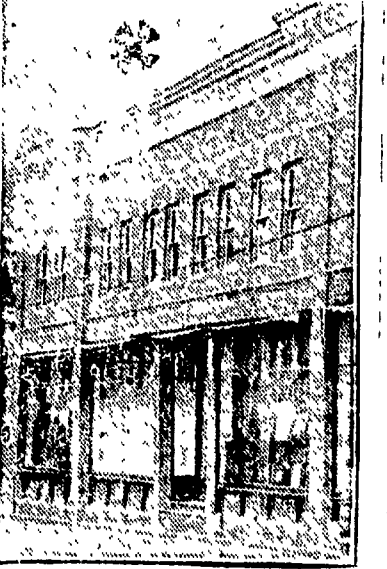

Names of Supervisors May Be Announced This Week.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE SOUTH

In States Which Are Solidly Democratic the President Will Divide the Jobs Among Democrats and Republicans—In Other States Republicans Get Them All.

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 9.—President Taft's first week at the summer capitol will be a busy one. He is going to dispose of the matter of census supervisors throughout the entire United States. Secretary of Commerce and Labor Nagle and Director of the Census Durand are coming to Beverly with a list of names of formidable length, and by the time they leave the president hopes to announce his position.

The president has fixed upon the policy he will follow with reference to census appointments in the south. In the states which are solidly Democratic the president will divide the appointments equally among the Democrats and Republicans. He will insist that the appointees shall not be active partisans, however, but capable men.

Cross Marks Situation of President Taft's Room.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE IN BEVERLY.

In Debatable States.

From the so-called "solid south" the president has picked out North Carolina, Tennessee, Kentucky and Mississippi as debatable states and will treat them on the same footing as northern states, giving all of the census jobs to Republicans. He will insist, however, that in these states the same standard of efficiency and character of men shall obtain. The states in which the division between Democrats and Republicans will be made are Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas.

As to Virginia, the president is represented as believing that the bitterness of the recent primary fight in that state between Henry St. George Tucker and Judge Mann for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination will give the Republicans an opportunity to make an excellent and encouraging showing at the polls next November.

Anything he can legitimately do to help the party in the state, it is said, he will gladly do. Several administration officers and possibly a cabinet officer or two will make speeches during the Virginia campaign.

Won't Appoint Customs Court.

The president has definitely decided that he will not make any appointments to the bench of the customs court provided for in the new tariff bill. While it authorized the court, congress failed to make an appropriation for the judges or any other officials. If the president should appoint judges under present conditions, he would have to fix their salaries. This he does not wish to do.

Mr. Taft has turned over bodily to Mr. MacVeagh secretary of the treasury, the task of selecting five experts to form a tariff commission under the new law. Mr. MacVeagh has authority to go ahead and select the men and the president will confirm the selection. These experts are intended primarily to assist the president with information and inquiries as to the administration of the maximum and the minimum provision of the new law.

BOYS HUNTING NEST FIND HOARD OF SILVER

Get Five Young Birds and $250 Worth of Plate.

Hanover, N. J., Aug. 9.—Three boys, Charles Todd, Raymond Moss and Harry Connell, started out to gather wild cherries and cattails to take home with them to Philadelphia. While walking across a farm they saw a bird's nest from the ground just ahead of them.

Thinking there was a bird's nest there the boys investigated, and not only found a nest of five birds, but $250 worth of silverware. Over the silver was a pair of old overalls. Some of the plate was covered with mould half an inch thick.

The boys brightened up half a dozen spoons and discovered the letter "C." The silver is supposed to have been hidden by burglars, who afterward failed to find the spot.

WOMAN FOUND DEAD IN WOODS

Mutilated Body Shows Signs of Fendish Crime.

FOUGHT HARD FOR LIFE

Ground For Yards Was Torn Up and Bits of Flesh Were in Finger Nails of Woman—It Not Identified—Tragedy Occurred in Lonely Spot Near Small Town in Michigan.

Detroit, Aug. 9.—The badly mutilated body of a woman about thirty-five years old was found in a clump of underbrush in Hamtrack, this county. The condition of the body indicated that the woman had been ill treated and killed.

The body was found by Justice of the Peace Munk, of Highland Park. It was lying on the back, with the skirt carefully drawn up over the face. The skull was crushed and the face and body were covered with bruises.

A handkerchief, supposedly belonging to the victim, was found several feet away, as was also her purse, that had been torn open. Nothing which might identify the body was left in it.

Valiantly Fought For Life.

The ground for yards about was torn up and bits of flesh were in the finger nails of the woman, indicating that she made a valiant fight for life before being overpowered. The clothing is of cheap material.

The land on which the body was found is owned by an Italian named Serrina Marke, who of late has entertained, it is said, many of his countrymen, who seemed to be itinerant peddlers or laborers.

While no suspicion attaches to Marke, the officers are investigating reports that women of the neighborhood have been annoyed by some of Marke's guests during the last week or two.

Mrs. A. J. Button, wife of a resident of the vicinity, says that she was accosted near where the body was found a week ago by a man who, from appearances, she thought was an Italian. She says he stopped her, and that she became frightened and ran to her home and locked herself in the house.

When her husband came home that night she told him of the occurrence, and he tried to find the man but failed. Mrs. Button gave a good description of the man to the officers.

The woman is described as having a general likeness to Mrs. Rosie Riccardo, mother of Vincenzo Riccardo, one of the men sought in connection with the case.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, you have a running sound or roaring in your ears, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be restored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. SEED IMPORTATIONS.

Professor N. E. Hansen of the South Dakota experiment station, sent abroad by Secretary Wilson to gather seeds of plants suitable to northern latitudes, has lately returned home. Included in some 250 kinds of seeds which he brought back with him are those of a clover and a variety of alfalfa growing wild in northern Asia north of Lake Balkal, where the temperature sometimes goes to 75 degrees below zero, adapted to the northwestern states; a supply of Persian clover seed suitable for western Texas, New Mexico and Arizona; varieties of alfalfa from north Africa, the original home of this legume, whence it was taken to Spain, to South America and then north and east through the southern states. It is Professor Hansen's belief that the ideal alfalfa of the future will be a hybrid of all the best alfalfas known. The development of these plant importations will be followed with keen interest by all who are watching the remarkable development of the country agriculturally.

To Pale, Thin People

Druggist L. M. Baehler Offers to Pay for Samose if it Does Not Make Thin People Fat.

Pale, thin people are simply suffering from want of nourishment. They may eat enough, but their food is not properly digested and does them no good.

Samose, the remarkable flesh-forming food should be used by all who are pale, weak and thin. It mingles with the food and aids assimilation, so that when taken for a short time, Nature will soon assert her normal powers, and the food that is eaten will give strength and good flesh.

Weigh yourself before you commence the use of Samose, and you will notice a steady gain. Samose is a scientific flesh-forming food that restores the thin and scrawny to their proper weight, and fills the weak debilitated with vigor and vitality.

The woman who longs for rosy cheeks and the plumpness of beauty should use Samose. The man who wants to be strong and well and gain health and good flesh, will find his desires accomplished by Samose.

Such remarkable results have followed the use of Samose that Druggist L. M. Baehler is willing to pay for treatment if it does not give desired results. Mr. Baehler makes this offer generally and wants all who are thin, weak and out of health to get a box of Samose from Baehler's Drug Store on those terms.

LOOK BEAUTIFUL

By All Reasonable Means, Try to Obtain Beauty. The Secret Told.

It is perfectly legitimate for anyone—man or woman—to desire and by all sane means to try to obtain beauty. Beauty of face is easily the chief part of human beauty, and the main factor in that is a "good complexion."

The secret of a good complexion, and that means beauty of face, is told in this phrase from the writings of a prominent skin specialist: "every particle of color in the complexion comes from the blood."

And this explains the great success of Margo, the new European discovery that is so popular with the reigning beauties abroad. It is in tablet form, and seems to contain every element that is needed to make a fair, rosy complexion, free from pimples, blackheads, blotches and sallowness. L. M. Baehler has the local agency, and a liberal test package can be obtained for 50c, with the understanding that if it does not give the desired benefit the money will be refunded. We advise every woman who wants a good complexion and youthful looking skin to try it.

THE FARMER PAINTS THINGS WHITE.

"The day's coming," said the farmer, "when every farm must sport white chickens to make a profit, and they must be White Rocks or White Wyandottes too. That day's about here, and we are just forced to breed these variegated."

"Why, how can that be?"

"Well, they are the only birds that really can fill the bill. We must leave to fanciers the breeding of Anconas, Andalusians, Crevecoeurs, Dorkings, Games, Hamburgs, Houdans, Javas, La Fleches, Langshans, Minorcas, Orpingtons, Polish, Redcaps and Spanish, for these fowls with dark and pink legs and pink and white flesh are no gone at market, for the Americans have gone crazy on yellow skinned, yellow legged chickens."

"The dark feathered birds must go, too, even if they have yellow legs like Reds, Dominiques and good old Barred Rocks, simply because the women are kicking up high jinks about dark pinfeathers."

"But there are the Leghorns, Brahmas, Cochins and Orpingtons."

"The Leghorns are not for market, but the champion egg farm breed, where they should be kept at free range. Brahmas, Cochins and Orpingtons weighing to twelve pounds are hard to sell to ordinary trade, and the pink fleshed Orpington is not the call."

"But why are White Rocks and Dorkies so popular with farmer and customer?"

"Just because they are easily and cheaply raised, are a grand combination for eggs and excellent flesh, and they perfectly suit the demand for color, quality and size."

"More farmers keep White Dorkies because they seem harder, their combs can't freeze, they stand more forcing for quick growth and lay better."

"The Rock carcass is not so attractive, as it is long and the skin rough, but the Dorkie is round, full breasted, of velvet skin and plumps quicker. It is prettier, cheaper and weighs a pound less than the Rocks, and that counts with the public."

"But I notice," concluded the farmer, "that the White Rocks and Dorkies are ahead in England, which simply proves that white is the rage and these magnificent American varieties win everywhere on merit."

DON'TS.

Don't feed young ducks whole corn, and never give them cayenne pepper. Don't expect your horse not to trample on the hens that roost on his feed trough. He shows horse sense.

Don't worry your wife about those hens scratching up the onion patch if you are too lazy to patch that fence.

Don't use another man's poultry cut to advertise your culls. That may be culinary art, but it's not acting a conscientious part.

Don't let the ducks walk in the moonlight alone. A fox will meet them far from home. For a duck stampede use moonshine; for duck paralysis use an electric storm.

A WISE DEDUCTION.

By F. A. MITCHELL.
[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.]

There lived in Asia Minor a man named Kalaidjien, a great philosopher, who spent years in hunting for the source of evil. At last he settled down to the conclusion that all the trouble in the world came from woman's vanity. Kalaidjien about the time he made this discovery was presented by his wife with a daughter. He gave orders that the child should be brought up with a limited number of companions and attendants, none of whom should ever refer to her personal appearance and on no account should she ever be allowed to look upon her face in a mirror.

Molra—that was the child's name—grew up to be a very beautiful woman. By and by a young man came courting her, or rather asked for her from her father. To the request the latter replied:

"Years of study, Tatios"—that was the suitor's name—"have convinced me that the source of evil is in woman's vanity. For that reason I have guarded my daughter that this fiendish spirit should not be permitted to enter into her. No one has ever looked at her. She is beautiful, nor has she ever seen her face reflected. She shall be your wife on your promise to carry out this policy which I have begun."

The lover consented, and the couple were married. The bride's mother at the time of the wedding secretly presented her daughter with a mirror; but, hoping to avert the consequences against which Kalaidjien had so long guarded, she told Molra that whenever she looked into it she would see her mother's face as it would appear in heaven. Shortly after the wedding the mother died, and the daughter found the mirror an inestimable treasure.

The mother, in order to insure the secret of its possession being kept, had told her that if she revealed it she (the mother) would grow old and ugly in heaven and be cast out into hell. Molra, greatly dreading such a consequence, carefully hid the mirror in a secret drawer in her cabinet, only opened by a key which she kept on her person. Once a month her husband was obliged to go to a distant city on business, and then Molra would take out her mirror and reverently feast her eyes upon her mother in paradise.

Meanwhile Tatios kept up the surveillance over his wife that her father had instituted. In western countries this would have been impossible, but not so in the east, where every man is master of his own household. Under the influence of a beautiful face which looked out at her from the mirror after occasionally Molra every year grew spiritually more and more beautiful, though physically she passed her prime, like other women, and her physical beauty began to wane. But she saw only in her reflected face the spiritual and did not recognize the decay of the physical.

When Tatios was about to go on one of his journeys he decided to take his wife with him. Molra, fearing for the safety of her treasure, locked it in a box and, taking it to a temple, gave it in charge of a priest to keep till her return. It happened that Tatios saw her go out and, being suspicious, followed her and watched her carry the box into the temple. He said nothing at the time, but brooded over the secret which his wife had kept from him and on her return to his home went to the temple and demanded the box. The priest would give it to no one but her who had left it, so Tatios demanded that she go to the temple and open the box before him.

Molra was in agony that her mother could look at her no longer and, becoming ugly, would be cast out of heaven. She told her husband her secret and, as he was unmovable, went with him to the temple and gave him the box with the key, and, opening it, he took out the mirror. Knowing that all the care he had for many years exercised had been aborted, he was in great agony.

"Woman," he said, "you have been looking at your own face. When you first saw it it was young and beautiful. Now it is old and faded. Look, undecieved by your fancy, and see that what I tell you is true!"

Molra, convinced that she was looking at her own reflection, ceased to see in it a spiritual beauty, viewing only the image of an old woman. Angered with her husband that he should have spoiled the charm, she cursed him.

At this point the priest said to the husband:

"Oh, Tatios, you have been acting on the assumption that evil has its source in the vanity of woman. Look rather within thyself. Believing that her good mother looked down upon her from heaven, your wife has been kept pure in the contemplation of her own image. It is the use made of beauty, not beauty itself, that brings good or evil and man's mastery of it, for man's selfish desires must always bring evil. You have destroyed a source of good within your wife, and she has cursed you."

The husband, seeing what he had done, bowed his head and begged forgiveness of his wife. She forgave him through the influence of her past contemplation of the good as seen through the beautiful. But the spell had been broken. The wife, no longer sustained by the mother who had so long looked at her from heaven, at times gave way to the peevishness of age, and her husband saw that the inestimable treasure he had thrown away was not to be recovered. Yet from that time under the influence of a new philosophy he was a better man.

But it was he who bore the burden of being amiable instead of his wife.

THE FARMER.

Who raises all the wheat for bread By which the human race is fed? Who rises with the sun at morn To plant the field with golden corn. To sow the barley, oats and rye, By which man famine may defy? The farmer.

Who rears the cattle on the hills, The sheep that pasture by the rills, The swine and fowl that furnish meat, The steed so strong of foot, so fleet? Who is it makes a wilderness Smile with an Eden's loveliness? The farmer.

Who sows the wondrous cotton seed? Who grows the flax and hemp we need? Who brings wool from his fleecy fold To protect man from wintry cold? Who is the man that doth conjure The choicest secrets from nature? The farmer.

Who twines the hills with fragrant vines Whose purple grapes drip richest wines? Who plants the strawberry flowering tree? Who binds with golden fruit for thee? On whose brave toll does man depend For food and raiment? Name him, friend. The farmer.

What avocation, then, more grand Than that of him who tills the land? Who could the scepter better wield Than he who guides the plow arid? What man is every inch a king? To whom should nations tribute bring? The farmer.

KURIOS FROM KORRESPONDENTS

Q. Will you please give me a sure way to tell the sex of pigeons? I got a method from a "big gun," and it resulted in my mating hens, as both laid.

A. Take bird by feet with right hand and hawk with left. When it flaps its wings, if tail turns down, rooster; up, hen.

Q. What is a fishtail comb? I have read of it, but have never seen one. What breed of chickens has them?

A. The end of a comb is called the blade. When this blade is split the defect is termed "fishtail," as it resembles a fish's tail. The defect is found among single comb breeds, and the new standard to be issued in 1910 will debar birds with such defect from shows.

Q. I read that poem about your bulldog, Ted, and, though dogs aren't chickens, yet I wish some information about bulldogs. My dog trembles a great deal in the legs and every once in awhile gets a spell that he doesn't eat. What is the cause, and what should I give him?

A. Your dog trembles because you give him too much meat. It affects his nerves. Feed him more milk and vegetables. His loss of appetite is caused by indigestion or worms. Give him a liver pill one day and turpentine on bread the next; then you'll hit both troubles, as they often go together.

Q. Why do the egg packers prefer April, May and June eggs?

A. Because they are very plentiful, therefore cheap, and do not spoil so quickly as July, August and September eggs.

Q. When do pigeons break the shell? I am offered a pair of prize winning Pouter for $3. Is that a fair price?

A. Squabs break the shell on the eighteenth day unless they are weak or weather is cool. You cannot buy good birds so cheap.

Q. Do you find it true that soft mash makes eggs infertile or brings weak chicks?

A. No; that is a getup of the fellows selling hoppers for dry feeding.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

If meat scrap has white lumps, it has heated. If it smells like fertilizer, spread it in the cornfield.

It is getting to be quite common for firms that deal in poultry supplies to ship goods inferior to the samples they send out. Refuse such goods and protest to the postal authorities.

The most famous Brown Leghorn fancier and judge in the country is Miss Sophia Pittelmann, a Choctaw Indian princess. Her father was a chief and a great friend of Charles Dickens, Grant and Lincoln. She and her brother live in Washington, run their plant in partnership and win the big prizes at Madison Square and Boston.

By select mating and feeding food heavy in protein more bone and muscle may be bred and fed into Leghorns, so that they may have long, strong bodies, instead of the butterfly fair forms some carry today.

The high price of feed gives poultrymen the hivers and has knocked some poultry plants to silvers. It not only makes feed and flour high, but chickens, eggs and meat also.

Our friends who set a turkey hen twice in a season report poor success. Eight weeks of privation and lack of exercise make too much for even a turkey to bear without expecting her to raise a big strong brood besides. Late turkeys don't pay anyway.

The nicest way to whitewash a poultry house is to use a sprayer. The fine spray enters every crevice, and the work is done quickly, thoroughly and smoothly. Then there are the fruit trees to be sprayed for destructive parasites. Five or ten dollars invested in a spraying machine certainly pays.

Certain poultry editors wear out pens advising their readers to keep roosters in celibacy during the winter to insure fertile eggs in spring. Where a fancier keeps fifty to a hundred males wouldn't it be a stunt to keep each one in bachelor quarters? The only times we keep sexes separate are when cockerels worry the other young stock, during molt and at show time.

A neighbor's hound sneaked into a friend's yard and killed forty-four of his early Wyandottes. When reported his owner didn't even "lick 'im." If those had been our show birds there would have been something doing. Why do people keep mean, useless curs?

BRICK ROAD BUILDING

Methods of Construction Adopted by an Ohio County.

MACADAM IS TOO EXPENSIVE.

Homer W. Jackson Tells Why Properly Constructed Brick Highways Are Cheaper Than Stone Ones—Ten Feet Wide Enough For Country Use.

Washington county, O., has pretty definitely committed itself to a policy of brick road building. The county officials and the different city and country organizations are a unit on the subject. Some work has already been done, and a comprehensive road building campaign only waits on a little more definite knowledge as to what scheme of road building will best suit local conditions.

The unanimity of opinion as to the desirability of brick roads is surprising. I attended a monthly meeting of the Valley Farmers' club, a social organization which unites the farmers of the Ohio valley in Washington county, where the subject of an afternoon debate was, Shall Washington county issue bonds for $100,000 to build brick roads? This club has a membership of about 200, and probably 125 were present at the debate, but if there was a man among them who did not favor brick roads he did not say so either in public or private. The member who took the negative side of the question in the debate contended that with their present knowledge of brick road material and construction they were not yet ready to expend large sums.

As the facts become known about the relative cost of stone and brick roads and the enormous cost of maintaining the former brick roads are rapidly growing in popularity. While it is true that brick roads cost more than stone, the difference is not as great as is generally thought. In Washington county, for example, brick roads are being built at a cost of only $2,000 to $3,000 per mile more than macadamized roads would cost, and it has been found that the cost of maintaining the latter will in six or eight years consume all the difference. After that the maintenance of the stone road continues increasingly expensive, while the properly constructed brick road will not require for an indefinite period. One of Washington county's farmers observed, "The first cost of a stone road is only the beginning of the expense; the brick road is an asset."

Here, as elsewhere, it has been found that the best argument for brick roads is—a brick road. Two or three years ago the first one was built for a distance of half a mile along the Ohio river where the road is flooded two or three times a year and where it was conceded that no other kind of a road would "stay put" for a single season. The brick road stayed, and every farmer who drove into Marietta over that road is clamoring for its extension.

At the time of my visit to Washington county last fall the commissioners were finishing two new brick roads. One up the Muskingum valley is sixteen feet wide with two feet of gravel outside the curb and two feet of earth berm outside the gravel, practically a twenty-four foot roadway. Here the brick is laid on a seven to eight inch gravel base with concrete curb, brick, curb and berm all rolled to an even surface. The cost of this road was $11,500 a mile, and it was built under state aid law.

On the west side of the Muskingum river, on the ridge above Marietta, they were building a ten foot brick road. This road was built on a direct levy made by the county commissioners, and the fact that they dared to make such a levy proves how generally public sentiment approves this kind of road building. This road has a broken stone base with two feet of stone and two of earth berm, making an eighteen foot roadway. The curb on this road is of brick. While this is the cheapest of all curbing, opinions differ as to its permanence. Certainly the berm must be kept up most carefully, as any falling away of the support will let the curb down. The cost of the different curbs used was put at $4,000 a mile for stone, $2,250 to $2,500 for concrete and $1,500 to $1,800 for brick. This ten foot road cost about the same as the sixteen foot—$11,840 for 6,000 feet—owing to the fact that it was laid out among the hills, where the grading was heavier, the hauls longer and harder and cracked stone used in place of gravel.

The ten foot roadway re-enforced with eight feet of stone and earth berm seems wide enough for ordinary country roads and met the approval of most farmers I interviewed. There was a pretty general sentiment, however, in favor of sixteen foot roadways on the main traveled roads and approaches to the city.—Homer W. Jackson in National Stockman and Farmer.
